

With regards to future directions, it is worth pointing out, whether it is beneficial to employ other components of the viability structure. The measure described here clearly operationalized a set of criteria. However, there may be more aspects to also consider and generate even better counterfactuals. A good example would be diversity. In terms of other evolutionary approaches, it would be interesting to apply modern state-of-the-art methods, with the same viability measure.