

Regarding future directions, it is worth pointing out whether employing other components of the viability structure is beneficial. The measure described here clearly operationalised a set of criteria. However, there may be more aspects to consider and generate even better counterfactuals. A good example would be diversity. In terms of other evolutionary approaches, applying modern state-of-the-art methods with the same viability measure would be interesting.